The State of AI adoption 2022
775 business leaders from the US, UK and India share their approach to data and AI.

PEAK

70%
think their organization is data-driven.

86%
of those doing AI across a small number of departments intend to extend it to the entire business

90%
are already using AI, or working towards doing so

93%
Are using AI to assist with decisions and 95% to automate decisions

How are businesses getting AI ready?

52%
have a Chief Data Officer.

52%
have at least one data engineer

42%
have at least one data scientist, however

81%
have a data strategy...

17%
intend to introduce one

98%
store data in a data lake or warehouse, or intend to 13

is the average size of in-house data science teams

5.3
average number of years businesses have had a data scientist

What's slowing commercial AI adoption?

35%
have a data strategy that facilitates AI

22%
of decision makers don't think a forward looking vision is important

0
number of preferred measures to assess value of AI projects

*Taken from a survey of 775 decision makers in India, U.S and UK from businesses of 100 people or more. Conducted April, 2022